1. There has been a noteworthy change in the government's treatment of formerly anti-USSR Yugoslavians during the last six months.
2. The Moslem minority which is largely concentrated in Macedonia were always pro-German and anti-Communist. Until about six months ago they had complete freedom and were left alone by the government police. Recently groups of them have been brought in and questioned almost daily. In addition a large number of prisoners condemned for their pro-USSR attitudes have been released from jail.
